

Products Made of Natural Material.

Products that are made from Real Marble, Travertine, Limestone or Stone, whichever is applicable, will within its natural form exhibit varying degrees of formations, veining and colour with inherent natural shakes & fissures and/or imperfections within the material. It is accepted practice to fill these types of natural materials, reinforce in one way or another and in no way is to be regarded as a defect.

Conglomerate marble, Agglomerate/micro marble, Travertine, Stone and even Natural Marble tends to have small air holes within the surface and again this is quite normal with this type of product.

Natural Marble, Travertine & Real stone are subject to change and different veining as no two pieces are exactly the same and therefore cannot be guaranteed as it is a natural product of nature, out of the ground, with all its associated characteristics/imperfections from its source as it is not a man made product where perfection maybe achievable and as such must be appreciated accordingly when choosing to purchase products made of such material.
